GLI. In order to provide additional clarity and practices for interactive gaming systems, GLI has revised its standards in GLI-19 Standards for Interactive Gaming Systems V3.0.

The new standards clarify technical requirements which are evaluated in the lab, and operational controls and procedures that have on-site post-install evaluations.

GLI-19 can overlap with other technical standard requirements. It also includes security testing for more efficient processes to monitor interactive gaming operations.

Inspired. In its first social gaming partnership, Inspired has launched online and mobile sportsbook V-Play Plug & Play through social gaming platform FendOff Sports.

Through FendOff, 14 of Inspired's virtual sports games will be launched, including football, basketball, soccer, horse racing and car racing.

FendOff allows participants to play against other fans and pick winners of the games.

A subsidiary of Virtual Gaming Worlds, FendOff is available in 49 US states.

Shark Trap has received certification from GLI for its Double Deck Shuffler.

Moving towards the next step, Shark Trap has selected two casinos in Colorado to conduct live field trials. Installations will begin as soon as the state lifts the table game restrictions that are currently in place due to COVID-19.

Shark Trap already has GLI certifications for its Single Deck, Double Deck and Novelty Game shufflers.
